FEBRUARY NEWSLETTER

Looking back on January...

We embraced the snowy start to 2025 with a fun line-up of wintery books! We read Jack Ezra Keats' The Snowy Day, Jan Brett's The Mitten and Caralyn Buehner's Snowmen at Night! The kids had a great time learning how to make "ripped" paper snowballs, lacing their own mittens, and using snap cubes to measure the snowmen who secretly played all night! Winter also made for some clever science experiments! Michael was our first "Mad Little Scientist" this month and helped us make snow from baking soda and conditioner. Magdalene led us as we "fished for ice" by adding a little bit of salt to the water and counting to 20 and Logan will wow us all with "growing ice" at the end of the month! Highlights from this month include counting the correct number of marshmallows into the hot chocolate mugs and then EATING the marshmallows, finding all the little polar animals in the winter sensory bin, making "pizzas" with the pizza toppings puzzles, playing with Mrs. Colbeck's blue sparkly blueberry scented play doh, and making snowflakes with LOTS of sequins and glitter! Who knew winter could be so fun!

Looking forward to February...

Our classroom theme for February is LOVE IS IN THE AIR! We will learn all about how Penguins show love for each other by holding hands and will talk about how we show love to the members of our families! Our Letter-of-the-Week rotation will continue with P, Q, R and S. We will continue to work on recognizing the letters in our names and will start to trace/draw the letters in different mediums including sand and shaving cream! We will segue into Valentine's themed crafts and books and of course...a Valentine's Day Party! Stay tuned for more details...
